The Center for Japanese Studies at the University of Michigan and the Consulate General of Japan in Detroit are co-sponsoring a lecture by Japanese race car driver Keiko Ihara on Thursday, November 15th.

Ms. Ihara is also an Associate Professor at Keio University's Graduate School of Media Design and was appointed as Independent Director of Nissan Motor Corporation last year. She will be speaking about the Le Mans 24-Hour Race and World Endurance Championship; technology development by car manufacturers; the new mobility society (Connected, Autonomous, Shared, Electric, MAAS); education; and women's empowerment from the perspective of a race car driver, faculty member, and business manager.

On Friday, November 30th, the Center for Japanese Studies at the University of Michigan and the Consulate General of Japan in Detroit are co-hosting a special workshop featuring renowned kyogen actor Ippei

Shigeyama. (Kyogen is a traditional form of Japanese comedic theater developed as a short intermission between acts of Noh theater.)

Mr. Shigeyama will speak about the history of kyogen, as well as his own history and background. At the conclusion of the workshop, audience members will have the opportunity to learn intricate kyogen dance movements from Mr. Shigeyama.
